Library Hosts Free Premiere of “Age of Champions”

New Braunfels, Texas —The New Braunfels Public Library is offering a free premiere screening of “Age of Champions,” a documentary featuring the inspiring story of a group of senior athletes. These athletes – including an 86-year-old pole-vaulter from Texas, swimmers and a team of basketball playing grandmothers – are chasing the gold at the National Senior Games.

The film will be presented in the library’s meeting room, 700 E. Common Street, at 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 23rd and also at the Westside Community Center, 2932 IH-35 South, at 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 30th.

“Age of Champions” captures the triumphant spirit of these seniors who are tackling old age with grace, humor and optimism. Win or lose, they are living proof that it’s never too late to become a champion. The film, which is approximately one hour and twelve minutes in length, will air in July on local PBS affiliates so attendees will view the piece before it makes its national debut.

“Nancy Pappas of ‘Active2Day, Healthy4Life’ will introduce the film and share information on some of the fitness opportunities available in our community,” said Gretchen Pruett, Library Director. “The public is encouraged to attend, enjoy this inspirational movie and perhaps win a great door prize!”

Additional information about the film is available at www.ageofchampions.org.
