City's Assistant Golf Professional Elected to Membership in the PGA of America

New Braunfels, TX— The City of New Braunfels is pleased to announce Adam Stanchos, Assistant Golf Professional, has graduated from the Professional Golfers' Association (PGA) Professional Golf Management Program (PBM) and has been elected to membership in the PGA of America as a class A professional.

The PGA PGM Program is a three-level program based on The People, The Business and The Game. To be eligible to advance within the program, assessments must be passed at each level. To be elected to membership in the PGA, aspiring golf professionals (apprentices) and students must go through the three levels of education courses, written exams, simulation testing, seminars, and pass the PGA Playing Ability Test. Mr. Stanchos began the PGA PGM program in December 2009 and has been with the City for four and a half years.

"We are proud of Adam and his recent accomplishment," said Stacey Dicke, Parks and Recreation Director.

"Adam is a tremendous asset to the department and the golf course."

The PGA PGM Program is an award-winning educational program designed for aspiring PGA Professionals. Offered through the PGA Education Center in Port St. Lucie, Florida, the program provides participants with the opportunity to gain the core competencies required for a successful career in the golf industry as a PGA member. Designed to constantly evolve, the program is structured to ensure continuous progress. For more information on the PGA of America visit www.pga.com.
