

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

January 15, 2015

CONTACT: Gretchen Pruett, Library Director
700 E. Common St.
New Braunfels, TX 78130
830.221.4322
gpruett@nbtexas.org

New Braunfels Public Library Adds World Book Online

New Braunfels, TX – The New Braunfels Public Library has added the online edition of the World Book to its growing selection of digital resources. World Book Online provides all the content found in the print edition, while offering ease of access, keyword searching, as well as variety of special digital features, including primary documents, related articles, online books, special reports, and research guides. World Book Online may be accessed both in the library and remotely by New Braunfels Public Library cardholders. To access this research tool, patrons should log-in at the “My Account/Catalog/eResources” menu tab on the library’s website at www.nbtexas.org/library, or come into the library and consult with a librarian.

“World Book Online is an excellent resource. This digital research tool retains all the information found in the print edition of the World Book Encyclopedia—which is still available on the shelves of the library —while it adds many useful features that will help students to thrive in the digital world,” said Library Director Gretchen Pruett. “Instead of searching haphazardly on the Internet, students can access reputable information with World Book Online, and confidently use, and cite, what they find using this wonderful tool.”

For more information about this resource contact the New Braunfels Public Library at 830-221-4300.

###