Celebrate Historic Preservation Month in May

New Braunfels, Texas — The month of May is National Historic Preservation Month and the City of New Braunfels will join thousands of individuals and communities across the country to celebrate Historic Preservation and the many benefits it brings to our community.

The City of New Braunfels' Historic Landmark Commission is celebrating National Historic Preservation Month by sponsoring its annual "Historic Museum Free-for-All" on May 21st, from noon to 4:00 p.m. Participating institutions include: The Ferdinand Lindheimer House, The New Braunfels Railroad Museum, The Buckhorn Barber Shop Museum, The Sophienburg Museum, The Museum of Texas Handmade Furniture, The New Braunfels Fire Museum, and the Historic Outdoor Art Museum. These institutions will offer free admission from 12:00 P.M. to 4:00 P.M., along with special activities.

Additionally, the Historic Landmark Commission is hosting a historic landmark "selfie" contest. Participants are encouraged snap a selfie of themselves at their favorite historical or cultural spot in town and post it to Instagram or Facebook using the tag #thisplacemattersnb to win one of several fun prizes.

More information is available at www.nbtexas.org/historicpreservation.
