New Braunfels Public Library and the Humane Society of New Braunfels, Inc.
Partner to “Check Out a Cat for Life”

New Braunfels, TX - Library patrons will have an opportunity to “check out” some non-traditional library materials this Saturday, July 9th, thanks to the Humane Society of New Braunfels, Inc. The fun begins at 10:30 a.m. with a Family Storytime all about cats. Starting at 11:00 a.m. Humane Society staff and volunteers will bring some furry library materials in with lots of information about pet ownership and animal care.

It is kitten season, and these little guys are looking for their “forever” homes. The library is a great place to learn about pet ownership – the responsibilities and the benefits - and now library patrons can check out this year’s kittens in action and even take a little guy or girl home.

“We are talking about fostering or adoption, however, not just a three week check out,” noted Library Director, Gretchen Pruett. “Pet ownership has so many benefits for families, their animals and the community. Our Humane Society does wonderful work in this community with education and outreach, as well as tending to our community’s animal population. We wanted to partner with them to create a program that is fun and beneficial to all. I think this event will meet both requirements.”

Humane Society staff and volunteers will be available (with lots of kittens) in the library for the remainder of the day and be available to answer any questions about owning a kitten or cat. For more information about this event call Gretchen Pruett at 830-221-4300.
