City Names New Braunfels Regional Airport Director

New Braunfels, TX – This week the City of New Braunfels announced that Mr. Robert Lee has been selected as the director of the New Braunfels Regional Airport.

“We are extremely pleased that Robert Lee will be joining the organization on Monday the 21st as our new Airport Director,” said Assistant City Manager Bryan Woods. “Robert is currently the South Texas Regional Airport Director for the City of Hondo and has extensive experience with airports and fixed based operations. We are excited at the experience and expertise that Robert will bring to the table to continue to grow our airport operations and its economic development potential.”

A doctoral candidate in Business Administration/Organizational Leadership, Lee displays a broad spectrum of aviation-related management experience over the past several decades. Additional, his background includes wide-ranging volunteer training efforts, both nationally and internationally, as well as numerous professional affiliations. Mr. Lee is also a member of the United States Air Force Auxiliary Civil Air Patrol where he holds the rank of Major.
