Family Music Band Ants Ants Ants Coming to New Braunfels Public Library

New Braunfels, TX — The ants are marching one by one into the New Braunfels Public Library to hear Oregon-based family music band Ants Ants Ants perform on Saturday, October 20th, at 4:00 p.m.

“I was very excited to hear Ants Ants Ants would be in the area and that we would be able to bring them to the library to perform for the families of New Braunfels,” said Children’s Services Librarian Jenny Rodriguez. “Their music is upbeat and interactive, and parents and caregivers enjoy it as much as the kids.”

According to the artists, Ants Ants Ants recalls the best elements of a fun and fanciful childhood with stylistic nods to 1970s-era Sesame Street, School House Rock, and “The Point” by Harry Nilsson. They say their music offers an invitation into “that golden childhood we dream of having ourselves and creating for the ones we love.”

The band is primarily comprised of duo Johnny Clay and Dave Gulick, one of whom has local ties.

“We are now living in the Portland area, but our roots are in Central Texas,” said Ants Ants Ants manager and publisher Christi Clay. “My husband Johnny and I graduated from Canyon High School in New Braunfels a while ago, and we still have a ton of family and friends from the area, so I expect a really nice turnout to our show.”

The Ants Ants Ants performance is free and open to the public and no registration is required.

Many library programs, including children’s concerts, are made possible with the support of the Friends of the New Braunfels Public Library.
