City Seeks Members for Boards and Commissions

New Braunfels, TX – The City of New Braunfels is seeking residents to serve on various boards and commissions.

“Each month, a variety of positions are made available for people interested in getting involved in their local government,” said City Secretary Patrick Aten. “City residents can help shape the future of New Braunfels by bringing their ideas, expertise, and energy to a City board or commission.”

At this time, there are 29 City boards to choose from, including eight boards currently seeking applicants. A current list of board and commission vacancies can be found on the City’s website at www.nbtexas.org/DocumentCenter/Home/View/728 and it is updated each month.

A complete list and description of all boards and commissions can be found on the City’s website at www.nbtexas.org/DocumentCenter/Home/View/727.

And applications can be made online at www.nbtexas.org/FormCenter/City-Secretary-6/Boards-and-Commissions-Application-53.

Aten said, “With such a variety of committees, some positions are specific for each position as they require residency or particular professions, while others are more general and have fewer requirements. But with more than 200 opportunities to serve the community, there is not a shortage of ways for people to become directly involved in their local government.”
